The construction industry needs a new generation of trades people and industry professionals.

Did you know... that an assessment of construction labour markets from 2011-2019 for Ontario, estimates 60,000 new work force entrants will join the province's construction workforce over the next nine years. But the industry will still need to recruit almost 100,000 more to meet demand and to compensate for 73,000 retirements.
